

Changes in Credit Card Cash Advance Allowance

Effective 30 April 2019, the Credit Card Cash Advance withdrawal amount will be capped at 50% of your credit limit. This is to safeguard your account should your credit card be compromised. There shall be no change to the current charges for cash advance withdrawals.

How This Impacts Your Credit Card Use

The Cash Advance withdrawal cap will only limit your withdrawal of funds from your credit card account through all applicable channels. The change will not impact your credit card use for Point-of-Sale or Online transactions if you have sufficient available limit for the transactions.

If you have already utilized more than 50% of your credit limit on Cash Advance after the effective date, you will still be able to continue using your credit card however you will not be able to perform any further Cash Advances.
